

The goal of this physics final project was to create a launcher that would launch a ball as far as possible, we brainstormed many different ideas and ended up creating a slingshot. We did this by using plumbing pipes and some wood and an elastic medical band. While we did not win, we still launch the ball pretty far.